To those who would hear my testimony:

I've connected the dots of my EHS for about 5 years now, I cannot be around a WiFi router, or WiFi iPad without symptoms of swollen temple artery, frontal lobe headaches, and worse palpitations and pressure upon my chest.

I was only able to resolve In House symptoms by hard wiring everything. I've taken the task of noting down all of my symptoms these years, and helping educate others, metering homes with help of Building Biologists.

I remember to turn that device off when not in use and have it not on my person. I own no other wireless anything.

Thanks for your courage in this matter.
